Evidence-Based Policing at a Tipping Point?

Professor Lawrence Sherman

Director, Institute of Criminology, University of Cambridge

Institute of Criminology Public Seminar Series

Thursday 25th October 2012, 5.30pm

Seminar Room B3, Institute of Criminology,
Sidgwick Avenue, Cambridge, CB3 9DA

A drinks reception in the basement foyer will follow this seminar for attendees

This seminar discusses the recent developments in evidence-based policing in the UK, Latin America, India, Australia and Asia. The UK's College of Policing is poised to sit at the centre of these global developments, as is the Society of Evidence-Based Policing. Yet there remain massive challenges to evidence-based thinking in most police agencies. Each of these challenges can, arguably, be overcome, as long as the underlying social movement supporting the change can be sustained. The seminar will close with a strategic plan for how the UK could become the world leader at promoting a more criminological framework for making police decisions and shaping police institutions.

This seminar is free, and is open to all interested in attending, with no ticket required.
